Monday and Tuesday

Look for books written by Beatrix Potter around your house and read as many as you can.

Which is your favourite and why?

Who is your favourite character?

Are there any similarities between all of the books?

Can you make a list of any interesting or unusual words?

If you don't have any books around your house, Mrs Shippam is reading the Beatrix Potter books on Tapestry. Also there are lots on YouTube that are read by different people.

Wednesday

Use all the unusual or interesting words that you found yesterday and make a glossary page. A glossary page is usually found at the back of a book and it explains what words mean. The list of words is always in alphabetical order so that people can find them quickly and easily. You could use a dictionary to look up what the words mean. Have a look in some of your books at home to see if they have glossary pages.

Thursday and Friday

Have a go at making a timeline of Beatrix Potter books. You will need to choose some of your favourite stories, research when they were published and then put them into time order. She wrote 28 books in total so there are lots to choose from! We will look forward to seeing how you choose to present your timeline.
